The Wood-Washington Memorial.

On the eve of the 131st anniversary of the occupation of Valley Forge by the American army under Washington the Wood-Washington Memorial is completed. The Chapel has already several beautiful memorials, but none equals the beauty of this latest gift. Its conception and completion are an honor to those so wondrously commemorated, the generous donor, the architect and workers in stone and bronze, and to the American people.

The pulpit, following the lines of the Sullivan-Washington font, has a dignity and grace rarely attained. Indeed, one can recall nothing more impressive or chaste in Europe. The buttresses relieve the panels, and give a sense of strength unusual in pulpit construction, while the deep-cut canopies at the base, with their groined arches and carved corbels, give a rich effect of light and shade. The severity of the upper treatment is relieved by the same decorative scheme which was used so effectively in the font, the arms of Washington on each face of the octagon, and the crusaders' cross on the angles, with quatre foils between. The bronze sermon-desk is most artistic and corresponds with the altar-desk. It has open tracery, carefully moulded and bears the Washington arms as well as the crosses.

The pulpit seems overly high on account of the cramped quarters in which it is placed, as the temporary roof of the Chapel is very low. It is designed to be in perfect proportion with its permanent surroundings, and good as the effect is now it will be greatly enhanced when the noble arch of the choir rises above it to its full height. May that day soon come!

The perclose is deeply panelled, and below the coping there is a line of rich decoration, consisting of a vine with graceful leaves and tendrils. The perclose terminates at the entrance to the choir in buttress-pinnacles, on which are carved the arms of Washington and of the Diocese of Virginia. The octagonal pinnacle rising from the buttress-base is panelled and castellated. Within the castellation there is a hemisphere over which delicately carved poppy leaves curve, the whole terminating in a poppy-head.

The lectern is much lower than the pulpit and is more simple in its lines. It projects but a few inches beyond the perclose from which it rises. The Gothic panelling is here elongated, giving an effect of greater height, while the buttresses carry the suggestion of strength and stability. The lines of tracery and of buttress lead upward to the culminating feature of the lectern which is the desk. This is of Indiana limestone as are all the other parts of the memorial. Here again appear the Washington arms, this time on a shield in the center of the desk. On the right corner is carved an eagle holding the Bible, symbolic of the Church, and on the left corner is another holding the shield on which are carved the arms of the United States, symbolic of the State.

The inscriptions are in keeping with the other parts of the design. Along the risers of the steps leading into the choir are carved in richly decorative text these words:

To the Glory of God and in Memory of Alan Wood, Jr.
July 6, 1834 October 31, 1902
and in Commemoration of George Washington, Warden of Truro Parish, Virginia, and Lay Reader in the French and Indian War.

On the base of the pulpit the inscription is:

George Washington was first appointed Church Warden in Truro Parish, October 3, 1763.

Another little-known fact in the religious life of Washington is commemorated in the following inscription on the base of the lectern:

George Washington read the Prayer Book Office for the Burial of the Dead at the Interment of Major-General Edward Braddock, July 14, 1755.

STATE MARKERS.

The Valley Forge Park Commission has done an excellent work in placing markers on the sites of the brigades These give such information as is now available and the Commission has left the tablets so that other information may be added later. The marker nearest the Chapel has been placed on the slope of the Star Redoubt. The inscription is as follows:

AUTHORS' PRESENTATION COPIES.

During the past month the following books have been presented to the Washington Memorial Library by their authors, who by their generosity have made the books doubly valuable, giving them that personal value which in time becomes historic value:

"Historical and Typographical Guide to Valley Forge, by W. Herbert Burk, B. D., Norristown, 1906." This book on Valley Forge contains a fund of information on the historic sites and the people associated with them, taken from material which Mr. Burk has been collecting for a history of Valley Forge.

"Washington's Prayers, by W. Herbert Burk, B. D., Norristown, 1907." This monograph covers a new field and introduces the reader to a new phase of Washington's character. The facsimile of Washington's "Treasury of Devotion," which is included in the volume, is intensely interesting as are the questions raised by it. The book was privately printed for the benefit of the Washington Memorial Chapel. The edition was limited to 500 numbered copies.

"Regimental Colors in the War of the Revolution, by Gherardi Davis, New York, 1907, and a Supplement, January, 1908." Only 125 copies of this valuable work were printed, and certainly there can be no more appropriate place for one of these than the Washington Memorial Library at Valley Forge. Mr. Davis has devoted considerable time to personal research in this field and has produced a book which is accurate, scholarly, and in the best sense historical. The illustrations are exceptionally fine, showing what remains of the colors carried by the soldiers in the War of the Revolution.

"The Irish in the American Revolution and their Early Influence in the Colonies, by James Haltigan; published by Patrick J. Haltigan, Washington, D. C., 1908." Presented by the author and publisher. It would be difficult to give an adequate review of this book in a few lines. It is a remarkable presentation of the work of Irishmen in the Revolution, and the author has succeeded in finding a vast amount of material, and yet he says this is only a beginning.

It will be a surprise to many to read such a statement as this: "It is only just to say that the majority of those brave soldiers who bore the hardships of Valley Forge were Irishmen or Irish-Americans. When the farmers of Delaware and Lower Pennsylvania were burning their crops rather than give them to the Americans then starving in their cheerless camps, these men of the Irish race remained true to the American cause and bore all the great trials which beset them, not only in the hope that better days would come, but in the stern performance of a noble duty—hope or no hope. Through their patriotism and perseverance the final triumph was won and the freedom and independence of the nation established." We regret the author did not give the grounds for this assertion.

"Anniversary Book of the American Revolution with Quotations from American Authors, compiled by Mary Shelley Pechin, Cleveland, 1897." Every day of the year is marked as an anniversary of some event in the American Revolution, and for each day there is an appropriate quotation. Such a book represents a labor of love which only a patriot could give and only a patriot appreciate.

PAMPHLETS.

"Some Peculiar Laws and Customs of Colonial Days, by Herman Vandenburg Ames, Ph. D. A paper read before the Pennsylvania Society of the Order of Founders and Patriots of America, January 17, 1905," and "The Peopling of the English Colonies in America, by Herman Vandenburg Ames, Ph. D. A paper read before the Pennsylvania Society of the Order of the Founders and Patriots of America, January 17, 1907." That Professor Ames, whether on the broad highway of history or in its byways, is a guide both competent and interesting, every one will acknowledge after reading these two pamphlets and we are grateful to the Order of Founders and Patriots for its selection of an essayist.

The National Thank-Offering.

This year a new feature was added to the Thanksgiving Service at the Chapel, and it is hoped that it will become a fixed institution. It occurred to the Rev. Mr. Burk that many would like to join with him in a National Thank-offering to be presented at Valley Forge in recognition of God's goodness to us as a Nation, the money to be used for the erection of the Patriots' Hall, which will be in time a monument built by thankful Americans. The result was a disappointment as far as numbers and money were concerned. Out of the 662 letters sent to Daughters of the American Revolution there were only 35 responses. But many of these were accompanied by such enthusiastic commendations that it believed others will be anxious to have a part in the next offering. While only one dollar was asked several sent more. The list of those who responded includes Mrs. Donald McLean, President General of the National Society, Daughters of the American Revolution, and the following general officers: Vice-Presidents General, Mrs. Charles H. Deere, Illinois; Mrs. Wallace Delafield, Missouri; Mrs. Erastus Gaylord Putnam, New Jersey; and Mrs. Amos G. Draper, Registrar General, Washington, D. C., and Mrs. Henry S. Bowron, Assistant Historian General, Washington, D. C. The State Regents included Mrs. Howard L. Hodgkins, Washington, D. C.; Miss Ellen Mecum, New Jersey; Mrs. Henry L. Roberts, New York, and Mrs. Allen Perley, Pennsylvania. Four State Vice-Regents also contributed, namely: Mrs. George T. Smallwood, Washington, D. C.; Miss Eleanor Murdock Johnson, Frederick, Md.; Mrs. Thomas B. Tomb, Missouri, and Mrs. E. Gaylord Putnam, New Jersey.

Mrs. McLean wrote: "I consider you have given me a high privilege in permitting me to unite in the Thanksgiving offering for Patriots' Hall and thank you."

Mrs. Draper said: "Thank you for allowing me the privilege of contributing at this time towards the erection of the Patriots' Hall. Enclosed please find check for one dollar. My only regret is that I am unable to add several ciphers to the one."

With Mrs. Smallwood's contribution came the cheering message: "With it comes many good wishes for so patriotic a cause."

More and more this work at Valley Forge is meeting with approval and it is fast gaining friends throughout the country. With the gifts for it come many cheering letters. What we want are more workers. The heaviest burdens have rested upon Mr. Burk's shoulders. If each one who reads these words will interest ten others in it, if only to the extent of giving one dollar for the Patriots' Hall, the result would be a fund of between four and five thousand dollars. Why not do it before the New Year?

Woodman's Valley Forge.

Every writer on Valley Forge is more or less indebted to Henry Woodman, who wrote an account of it more than half a century ago. Few have a personal knowledge of Woodman's work, the only copy of it in the archives of the Historical Society of Pennsylvania being the typewritten copy presented by Mr. Ellwood Roberts, of Norristown. This was copied from the files of the "Norristown Herald and Free Press," which paper copied the letters from the Bucks County Intelligencer. Through the courtesy of the "Norristown Herald" we will be able to publish this important work in the columns of the Chronicle. The following letter is taken from the "Norristown Herald and Free Press" of Wednesday, June 26, 1850:

[From the Bucks County Intelligencer.]

HISTORY OF THE VALLEY FORGE.

BY HENRY WOODMAN.

LETTER II.

The Valley Forge is situate on the western side of the River Schuylkill, about twenty-two miles from the city of Philadelphia, in the counties of Chester and Montgomery. The village bearing the name of Valley Forge, contains about forty houses, with a large cotton factory, a grist mill, and numerous other buildings; these lie on a stream of water called the Valley Creek, which forms the dividing line between the two counties, that part lying on the eastern side being in Montgomery, and that on the western in Chester county. The water power for driving the machinery is probably not excelled by any other in Pennsylvania, as the stream passes between two abrupt hills from the fertile regions of the great valley, a distance of more than a mile to the village, near which place these hills, or, as they are more familiarly called, Mount Joy and Mount Misery, have their northern termination, at which place a large dam of more than twenty feet in height has been constructed, which affords in the driest seasons, a sufficiency of water to continue the manufacturing business in full operation. A public road from the city of Philadelphia to this place, called the Gulf road, originally terminated here. Another road from Phoenixville, Yellow Springs, Morgantown, Reading, and many other places, commencing at the termination of the Gulf road, at the county line, and called Nutt's Road, taking its name from a certain Samuel Nutt, who owned extensively at Phoenixville, in Chester county, more than a hundred years ago. Another road has within a few years been laid out from the place to the Lancaster turnpike, following the course of the dam through the county of Montgomery, but having never traveled it, I cannot say where it terminates. About half a mile west of the village, the Gulf road is intersected by a road originally leading to the old Lancaster road, by the way of the Valley Baptist Meeting House, and has been called the Baptist road, or Valley road. One thing a little remarkable is, that though in a public place, with the Reading railroad passing through a part of the property, that there has never been a hotel or tavern in it.

As we approach the place on the eastern side of the Gulf road, as we ascend the top of the hill, a little north of the intersection of the Baptist road, the beautiful river Schuylkill bursts full upon the view, and in a line between the observer and the river, is seen the original mansion where General Washington had his headquarters during the encampment in the winter of 1777 and '78. After descending by a somewhat meandering road, we arrive at Valley Forge, or rather the village bearing that name, the purpose of its original construction having been long since abandoned, not having been used for the manufactory of bar iron from pigs for more than sixty years.

At Valley Forge.

BY AUGUSTUS WIGHT BOMBERGER.

Hail, heaven-appointed hills, engirt with snow!
Pillar and shaft may pass away, but ye—
Till time hath ended in eternity—
Erect, immutable, shall stand, I know,
Hither my feet have led again, and, lo,
Still sweep your lofty winds from tree to tree
That fanned and fed the camp fires of the free
Close-kindled on these heights long years ago;
And still their voices undenied, proclaim
To all the splendid silence, everywhere
Abiding 'round about, his deathless name
Who once attained such strength 'mid this pure air
He liveth here supreme, unmatched of fame—
Her Lion at bay in Liberty's own lair!

—From "Poems for Christmas and Other Verse."

CHRISTMAS, 1777.

The Christmas celebration at Valley Forge 131 years ago was not very extensive. So far no record of a religious service has been found. In the Orderly Books this is the only note of celebration, "A Gill of Whiskey or of Rum a man to be issued to all the non-Commisd. Officers and Soldiers." Washington celebrated the day by moving into the home of Isaac Potts after having spent a week in his tent on the bleak hills.

We are glad to print in this month's number of the Chronicle Mr. Bomberger's poem on Valley Forge. This was inspired as he worked here as superintendent of the Sunday school. It seems appropriate reading for this anniversary month.

Christmas Suggestions.

Do not worry about what to send your friends for Christmas. They will appreciate a Founders' Certificate, which can be sent filled out and signed, in time for Christmas. If you do not care to send them framed they will be mailed from All Saints' Rectory with your card enclosed. Please make out your lists as soon as possible.

"Washington's Prayers," published by the Rev. W. Herbert Burk for the benefit of the Washington Memorial Chapel, is another acceptable gift. As only 500 copies of this book were printed it will soon be impossible to buy a copy, so that your gift will not only be unique but one which will become more valuable. The book is handsomely bound in white and gold and will be sent on receipt of price, $1.50. Orders should be sent to Mr. Burk.

In sending either a Founders' Certificate or a copy of "Washington's Prayers" you will be helping build a national memorial as well as giving honor and pleasure to your friends.

The Guilds of the Washington Memorial Chapel solicit orders for all kinds of work, including aprons, iron holders, dust caps, dust cloths, children's and women's underwear, the hemming of table and bed linen (by hand or machine), and crocheted work. Also pies, cakes, etc. Orders may be sent to Mrs. Sumeril, head of Working Chapter, Port Kennedy, Pa.; Mrs. Nathan Hughes, Port Kennedy, Pa.; Mrs. Charles W. Walker, Strafford, Pa., or to any member of the Guilds.

December 19th will be the 131st anniversary of the occupation of Valley Forge by the American army. An effort is being made to commemorate the event by the completion of a fund of five hundred dollars to be paid on the Patriots' Hall, and to this end patriots are urged to contribute at least one dollar each to this fund. We hope to print a long list of such contributions in our next issue

The Missionary Council and the Washington Memorial Chapel.

The Third Department of the Protestant Episcopal Church has put itself on record as thoroughly in favor of the work at Valley Forge. The Third Department includes the Dioceses of Pennsylvania, Pittsburgh, Central Pennsylvania, Harrisburg, Maryland, Easton, Washington, Virginia, Southern Virginia and West Virginia, and held its first meeting in the Church of the Holy Apostles, Philadelphia, on the 17th and 18th of November.

On the second day of the Council the Rev. John S. Gibson, Rector of Trinity Church, Diocese of West Virginia, in an able speech presented a resolution endorsing the work begun by the Rev. Mr. Burk at Valley Forge and recommending to all rectors, Sunday school teachers and officers that an offering be made on Sunday, February 21, 1909, or some more convenient date, for the completion of the Chapel. The motion was seconded by the Rev. Martin Aigner, Rector of St. John's Church, Franklin, Diocese of Pittsburg.

Bishop Whitaker expressed his regret that this important resolution was presented without that support which had been planned for it, in a speech by the Bishop of Virginia, who was familiar with the work and heartily in favor of it. The Bishop had been compelled to leave before the resolution could be offered. In his absence the Rev. Mr. Burk was invited to address the Council on this important national work, and in a brief speech appealed for the support of his hearers. The resolution was adopted unanimously and with great enthusiasm.

This very important action is the result of the interest and devoted work of Mr. Charles Wells Walker, and shows what can be done where a cause is heartily espoused. In addition to the large offering which may be expected as the result of this action of the Council there will be the great moral weight of the endorsement of this influential representative body. When the Church in Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, District of Columbia, Virginia and West Virginia declares that the Washington Memorial Chapel must be completed the day of that happy consummation of a beautiful work is not far distant.

Confirmation.

The apostolic rite of Confirmation will be ministered by Bishop Whitaker in the Chapel on Sunday afternoon, February 14th. Two years ago the class confirmed numbered fifteen and last year's class contained twenty-two. The preparation for the class of 1909 has been going on quietly, and the clergy are greatly encouraged by the prospects of another large addition to the congregation. Let them have the help of your prayers for the outpouring of the Holy Spirit and the personal cooperation of every member of the congregation. All those considering the consecration of themselves to the service of the Lord Jesus Christ should hand their names to the Rev. Mr. Finn at the earliest moment.

The Rev. Mr. Burk presented his resignation of the rectorship of All Saints' Church to the Vestry on November 6th, with the intention of removing to Valley Forge, as it was thought at that time that he would be unable to continue the work at All Saints' and at the Chapel. He chose the latter as the field most needing him. The Vestry of All Saints' Church was unwilling to lose his services and offered to grant him a leave of absence and an increase of salary instead. He left the decision to the Bishop and to the physicians, who advised rest rather than a resignation, and Mr. Burk, encouraged by his rapid recovery has decided to continue his work in both fields after needed rest.

The name of Margaret Todd was omitted last month in error.

The December meeting of the Guild was held on Wednesday, the second, at Mrs. Charles Todd's, Port Kennedy. There were eleven members and three guests present. The usual business followed. Mrs. Sumeril, head of the Working Chapter, was able to report that a number of orders had been filled. Ten aprons were made the past week. The Valley Forge members will take charge of the Christmas decorations in the Chapel. They did this work last year and visitors from far and near came to see the wonderously beautiful appearance of the Chapel. The decorations will be put up Wednesday morning, December 23d, and all are asked to assist with the work. Mrs. J. R. Tyson has joined the Guild. The next meeting will be held on Wednesday, January 6th, at Mrs. Francis Bean's, Valley Forge. After adjournment the Guild enjoyed the hospitality of their hostess, Mrs. Todd.

The choir attendance at rehearsals and service has been very good. Miss Margaret Bomberger's assistance with the music has also been a great pleasure to every one.

The Washington Memorial Cemetery.

The article entitled "God's Acre" in the October number of the Chronicle struck a sympathetic chord in many hearts and the question has been asked, "Why not?" The idea of a Washington Memorial Cemetery commends itself whether viewed from the side of sentiment or of finance. The idea of it has been spoken of as very beautiful, so beautiful that it ought not be lost, while, on the other side the proposition has been commended by business men. That lots can be sold there is no doubt. The fact that the care of the lots will be secured by a large endowment conservatively invested by a stable corporation is a strong argument in their favor.

How to finance the work has been the problem. The sum required for the whole project is, outside the grading, only three thousand dollars, and of this sum a few hundred would be sufficient to make a beginning. Three propositions have been suggested for financing the work, as follows:

1. To divide the whole tract into thirteen parts, each to be called after a Colony, as the Pennsylvania Acre, the Virginia Acre. To give a Colonial Acre in memory of the soldiers of that Colony buried at Valley Forge and in honor of some ancestor or other member of the family or a friend, three hundred dollars would be required. In time each Acre would be marked by a fitting monument.

2. To issue sixty $50 bonds, each to be secured by a lot. Holders of bonds would be given the option of a cash payment as the Cemetery fund increased, or an eighty dollar lot if selected within one year.

3. To raise a fund for this purpose by a popular subscription.

Perhaps the best plan would be to combine all these suggestions. The first subscription towards the purchase of ground for a cemetery is twenty-five dollars. Two bonds have been taken and it is definitely known that others are desired. In other words all the movement needs is a little support and the result will be assured.

This matter must be acted upon promptly to carry it through successfully. What will you do for it? The payment for the bonds need not be made at once unless so desired, and no payment is desired before the first of January.

Write to the Treasurer and state what you will do.

1. How much you will subscribe, or
2. How many bonds you will take, or
3. Which Colonial Acre you will give, or
4. How many lots you will purchase

The Entertainment.

On the evening of Friday, December 4th, a very pleasant entertainment was given in a room of Patriots' Hall.

In spite of the storm the people from the countryside responded in goodly numbers, and the light and warmth and cheer within, made a strong contrast to the bleakness and winter's rain without.

The cakes and candies were in great array, while those taking part in the entertainment met with hearty applause.

There was a minstrel show by boys from All Saints', Norristown, under the supervision of Miss Edna Gartley.

There were songs by Miss Margaret Bomberger and a trickster who delighted the boys.

Miss Sadie Quander played a solo and then, too, we had Mr. Erwin's phonograph.

Nearly two hundred people were present and over sixty dollars have already been reported.

Mrs. Hughes, Miss Pechin and Mrs. Sommerville deserve the heartiest congratulations.
